ACTION ITEM

Request:

A request to accept open space land dedication from the Magic Valley Ranch Homeowner's Association.

Time Estimate:

No presentation is planned as the item is part of the consent agenda.

Background:

About 25 years ago, the developer of the Pheasant Meadows subdivision dedicated land to the City to be developed as a park to serve that neighborhood and the surrounding area. The developer installed some trails on the land, but the park development, apart from the trails, was left for the City to do at a later date. We still have not developed this park. The Magic Valley Ranch subdivision was developed adjacent to a portion of the Pheasant Meadows park land. In the Magic Valley Ranch subdivision, the developer included open space located directly adjacent to the park land, but the homeowner's association (HOA) maintained the ownership of that open space.

This year, the city has been constructing a new well on the property that we own within the Pheasant Meadows Subdivision. There is still plenty of space around the well to develop as a park. With the construction of the well, we needed an easement from the Magic Valley Ranch HOA across their open space to construct a water line and pressure valve. When we approached the HOA to inquire about the easement, they offered instead to dedicate the open space to the City entirely. The HOA has been struggling to maintain all the open space over the years and would like to dedicate the property to the City to eliminate their maintenance responsibility of the property.

We began to investigate their proposal. As their open-space property is directly adjacent to our property in the Pheasant Meadows subdivision, the two properties could be developed into a park together that would be a much better park amenity for the surrounding neighborhoods. And since we needed the water line easement across the property, it made sense for us to accept their dedication of this land to the City. The HOA board has met and has approved their dedication of the land to the City. See the attached letter from the HOA regarding their approval. I have also attached an aerial photo showing the property from the HOA (three parcels outlined in blue) and the property currently owned by the City (two parcels outlined in red) to illustrate how their proposed dedication aligns with our currently owned future park property. Staff recommends that the Council accept the dedication of the open space land and approve this request as submitted. If accepted, staff has a plan to bring back a funding scenario to the Council in a subsequent meeting to include in the FY2028 budget for the development of the neighborhood park on both properties.

Approval Process:

A simple majority vote of the Council is needed to approve this request.

Budget Impact:

There is no immediate significant impact associated with the Council's approval of this request. However, if the Council does approve the request, the City will take over the ownership and maintenance of the property. There will be minor undeveloped land maintenance costs associated with that ownership. Also, the long-term plan is to include this property as part of the development, with currently owned City property in the adjacent subdivision, of a park that would serve this subdivision and the adjacent Pheasant Meadows Subdivision. That future park development will have a future financial impact, but that impact will be included in a future year's budget.

Regulatory Impact:

If the Council approves this request, staff will begin the process of transferring the property ownership from the homeowner's association to the City.

Subject RE: Proposed Transfer of undeveloped common areas to the City of Twin Falls.

Dear Mayor and members of Twin Falls City Council

The Magic Valley Ranch Homeowners Association respectfully requests that the City of Twin Falls accept the proposed transfer of six acres of undeveloped common areas in our subdivision. The HOA Board has approved the transfer of these areas to the city. We have discussed the proposal with Mr. Mitch Humble, and we appreciate his support and guidance. We hope the property can be incorporated into a green area that benefits the entire city.

We look forward to working with the city during the planning phase of any proposed development.

Thank you for your time, consideration, and service to the residents of Twin Falls. We appreciate your dedication to our community and look forward to your continued leadership regarding matters affecting Twin Falls and the Magic Valley region.

With the upcoming State elections, the seat currently held by Cherie Vollmer could also be vacated should be successful in her bid to become a member of the Idaho House of Representatives. The Mayor and members of the City Council invited interested individuals to submit an application and respond to five (5) questions. The questions asked each candidate to share their desire to serve on the City Council, their knowledge of the City of Twin Falls, and their understanding of the issues facing the community. The application period was open for approximately three weeks, from September 28, 2026, through October 16, 2026. A total of 15 individuals submitted applications for consideration. All applicants were verified as qualified electors, as defined by Idaho Code § 34-104. (See the following section.)

A selection committee composed of Mayor Jason Brown, Vice Mayor Craig Hawkins, and Councilwoman Ruth Pierce reviewed the applications during an open, special meeting of the City Council on October 19, 2026. At the conclusion of the question-and-answer period, each candidate will be given one (1) minute to provide a closing statement.

Under Idaho Code, the Mayor is responsible for appointing an individual to fill the remainder of the unexpired term of office. The Mayor's appointment must be confirmed by a majority of the City Council. Required Questions

Please answer all five (5) questions below as complete and concise as possible. Responses to each question are limited to a maximum of 150 words.

Why do you want to serve on the Twin Falls City Council, and what experiences or perspectives would you bring to the Council that would help you represent the entire community? *

Please include past public service experiences that you have (City commissions and committees, elected positions, etc.

I would like to join City Council because I have a passionfor serving others and deeply care for my community.

My service experience

- 2016-2021 Executive Director of Voices Against Violence
    - Board Member for Idaho Coalition Against Sexual and Domestic Violence
    - Served on Data Committee for Idaho Housing and Finance
    - Chaired Homeless Committee for Magic Valley
    - Created and chaired Sexual Assault Response Team
    - Managed budget and increased financial reserve
- 2015-2026 Maintained Private Therapy Practice/ Small Business Owner
- 2009-2015 Counselor for Twin Falls School District serving at risk youth and families

I understand how to meet the needsof the most vulnerable people in our community; those whose voices are oftennot represented in public discourse; low-income families, children, abusevictims, and people with mental illness. I have worked both directly with those people, and on statewide boardsto influence decisions that impact them.

What do you believe are the three most significant issues facing the City of Twin Falls over the next three to five years, and what role should the City Council play in addressing them? *

The biggest issues of Twin Falls are sustainable economicgrowth, affordability, and the health and safety of residents.

City Council should exercise fiscal responsibility to strategicallyplan to ensure the best interests of the community and its resources are consideredwhen making approvals for zoning or infrastructure development. Growth isimportant, but not beyond the city's capacity to support it with solidinfrastructure.

City Council can also prioritize projects that increasehousing development that meet the needs of the average citizen and keep pacewith population growth.

The City of Twin Falls has a responsibility to identify trendsin the community that lead to the harm of citizens and to mitigate those risks throughinvesting in ways to help make the community healthier for all. Based on evidence-based assessment of need, Iwould support mental health interventions, bike and pedestrian safety, and developmentthat brings needed resources into struggling neighborhoods.

Council members will sometimes vote on an issue where their personal preference differs from what they believe is in the best interest of the community as a whole. Share the approach that you would take with a difficult or controversial decision when residents are sharply divided. *

It is important to take account of the interests of thecitizens and vote in ways that proportionally reflect the community members werepresent.

I will accomplish this by identifying shared goals andvarious strategies for meeting those goals before selecting a strategy that allparties can agree on. Sometimes thisrequires thinking outside of the box and making concessions in one area if itmeans satisfaction in other areas. In myexperience it can be useful to try to be curious and gain a deeperunderstanding of the values underlying the opinions of others to informdecision making in a way that honors the values, even if through a slightlydifferent means. I would take the timeto listen to the concerns of the community and create a healthy dialogue that explores solutions.

Effective councils require members who can disagree with one another while maintaining productive working relationships. Tell us about a time you strongly disagreed with colleagues or other leaders. How did you handle it, and what did you learn from the experience? *

As Executive Director I was faced with a challenge duringthe summer of 2020. Following the divisivedeath of George Floyd, the Idaho Coalition released a statement supporting"Black Lives Matter" and criticizing law enforcement. This was not well received by the IdahoChiefs of Police Association and the Idaho Prosecuting Attorney's association. I had vocalized internally how such astatement could impact the on-the-ground relationships between victim serviceorganizations and criminal justice systems in communities across the state. I met with Chief of Police Kingsbury andProsecutor Grant Loebs with whom I historically enjoyed a positive workingrelationship. I took the time to listento the concerns and reactions of each party. Without condemning the decision of the board, I explained why the statementwas appropriate to the organization's mission. I communicated how much I valued my relationships with them, despite oursometimes-competing interests, and the rift was mended.

Recognizing that circumstances change, would it be your intention to run in the next City election, November 2027, to retain your seat?

- Yes
- No
- Undecided

Why do you want to serve on the Twin Falls City Council, and what experiences or perspectives would you bring to the Council that would help you represent the entire community? *

Please include past public service experiences that you have (City commissions and committees, elected positions, etc.

I am seeking a position on the City Council because I believe my professional experience, community relationships, and collaborative leadership style can help our city navigate a period of significant growth and change. As a Community Impact Manager at Chobani, I built trusted relationships with local organizations serving individuals and families in need, giving me firsthand insight into many of the challenges facing our community.

My background in healthcare further expanded my understanding of barriers related to access, affordability, and quality of life, while my experience in Human Resources strengthened my ability to listen, build consensus, and work collaboratively to find practical solutions.

I have developed meaningful personal and professional relationships with people from diverse backgrounds, allowing me to consider perspectives beyond my own. I am committed to representing the entire community with a grounded, thoughtful approach to addressing growth, infrastructure demands, and housing affordability.

What do you believe are the three most significant issues facing the City of Twin Falls over the next three to five years, and what role should the City Council play in addressing them? *

I believe the three most significant issues facing Twin Falls over the next three to five years are infrastructure, water sustainability, and housing affordability. Our city is experiencing unprecedented population and economic growth, creating both opportunities and challenges.

Growth is placing increasing demands on roads, public services, and utilities. The City Council must ensure infrastructure investments keep pace with development while maintaining residents' quality of life.

Water is one of our most valuable resources. The Council should prioritize responsible planning and long-term stewardship to ensure a reliable water supply that supports agriculture, sustains business operations, and meets the needs of future generations.

Housing affordability is also a growing concern for working families, young professionals, and seniors. The Council should encourage thoughtful development and collaborate with community partners to increase housing opportunities.

The Council's role is to balance growth with responsible planning, ensuring Twin Falls remains a thriving and sustainable community for all residents.

Council members will sometimes vote on an issue where their personal preference differs from what they believe is in the best interest of the community as a whole. Share the approach that you would take with a difficult or controversial decision when residents are sharply divided. *

When faced with a difficult or controversial decision, I would begin by listening to all perspectives with an open mind and a commitment to understanding the facts. My experience in healthcare, human resources, and community engagement has taught me that people often have valid concerns, even when they disagree. I believe it is important to create opportunities for residents to be heard, seek input from subject matter experts, and carefully evaluate both the short-term and long-term impacts of a decision.

While my personal views may inform my perspective, they should not outweigh what is in the best interest of the community as a whole. I would approach each issue by considering who is affected, weighing the available evidence, and looking for solutions that balance competing interests whenever possible, using the City's comprehensive plan as a guidepost. If a consensus cannot be reached, I would make the decision I believe best serves the community's future and be transparent about the reasoning behind that decision. Effective leadership requires both courage and humility, especially when opinions are sharply divided.

Effective councils require members who can disagree with one another while maintaining productive working relationships. Tell us about a time you strongly disagreed with colleagues or other leaders. How did you handle it, and what did you learn from the experience? *

During the COVID-19 pandemic, North Canyon's executive team faced a difficult decision regarding vaccine mandates and compliance with federal healthcare requirements. I personally disagreed with requiring employees to be vaccinated and strongly believed individuals should have the freedom to make their own healthcare decisions. At the same time, I understood the organization had obligations to comply with CMS requirements and that failure to do so could have serious consequences for our employees, organization, and the people we served.

I approached the discussion by listening to differing perspectives, seeking to understand the regulatory and operational impacts, and advocating for solutions that balanced employee autonomy with organizational responsibilities. While the final decision was not fully aligned with my personal views, I supported it once it was made and helped communicate it respectfully and compassionately.

The experience taught me that effective leadership requires balancing personal beliefs with organizational needs and the broader good while maintaining productive relationships through respectful disagreement.

Required Questions

Please answer all five (5) questions below as complete and concise as possible. Responses to each question are limited to a maximum of 150 words.

Why do you want to serve on the Twin Falls City Council, and what experiences or perspectives would you bring to the Council that would help you represent the entire community? *

Please include past public service experiences that you have (City commissions and committees, elected positions, etc.

I want to serve because Twin Falls is where I run a business, raise my family, and have spent years serving the public.

As owner of Nu-Vu Auto Glass, I understand budgets, payroll, and the real cost of city decisions. Through the Chamber and Frontier, I see both business needs and neighbors who need support. I listen first, do the homework, and decide for the whole community, not one group.

Public service:

- Urban Renewal Agency: two terms, Secretary in second term. Helped oversee Chobani, Glanbia, Clif Bar, Gemstone, City Hall, and Main Avenue renovation. These projects brought jobs and investment while renewing downtown.
- Business Plus: 10+ years, President for two years
- SEIDO: one year
- Chamber of Commerce: Vice Chair
- Frontier Community Resources: board member
- Twin Falls 4th of July fireworks: head pyrotechnician since 2010
- Youth baseball coach

What do you believe are the three most significant issues facing the City of Twin Falls over the next three to five years, and what role should the City Council play in addressing them? *

1. Paying for growth. Twin Falls serves a regional population on a local tax base. The Council has managed this responsibly. I would keep budgets disciplined, protect core services, and keep pushing for better state funding tools.

2. Infrastructure. The city is already investing in streets, water, and wastewater. The Council should stay on that plan, keep projects on schedule, and make sure growth pays its fair share of new capacity.

3. Housing and workforce. Families and employers need affordable housing. The Council should keep approvals predictable and partner with builders and employers. My URA experience showed me how public investment can unlock private projects that benefit the community.

The Council's role is to set priorities, ask hard questions, and hold the city accountable for results.

Council members will sometimes vote on an issue where their personal preference differs from what they believe is in the best interest of the community as a whole. Share the approach that you would take with a difficult or controversial decision when residents are sharply divided. *

When residents are sharply divided, I follow four steps.

1. Get the facts. I start with the data and staff analysis.
2. Listen widely. I seek out people on both sides, including those who rarely speak up.
3. Weigh the whole community. My personal preference is one input, not the deciding one. I ask what serves Twin Falls over the next ten to twenty years.
4. Decide and explain. I vote my best judgment and explain my reasoning, especially to those who disagree.

I've owned and managed businesses for over 20 years. Recently, I changed our compensation structure, and not everyone liked it. I lost sleep over it. I met with the team, explained the trade-offs, and listened. We adopted the change and kept every employee.

Effective councils require members who can disagree with one another while maintaining productive working relationships. Tell us about a time you strongly disagreed with colleagues or other leaders. How did you handle it, and what did you learn from the experience? *

I've had many business ventures over the years. In one, I strongly disagreed with my business partners' decision to keep an employee who, at the time, was sinking an entire division and costing us more money than we could spare. I felt the risk to the company, and to the other people in that division, was too high.

I made my case, listened to their reasons, and kept the discussion on the business, not the person. Eventually, the employee moved into a different role and is doing much better there. My partners' patience gave that person a chance, and it worked out. We maintained our relationship throughout.

I learned that a good outcome can come from a path I wouldn't have chosen, and that I can disagree firmly while still respecting people who see it differently. I would bring that kind of experience to the Council.

Why do you want to serve on the Twin Falls City Council, and what experiences or perspectives would you bring to the Council that would help you represent the entire community? *

Please include past public service experiences that you have (City commissions and committees, elected positions, etc.

My commitment to Twin Falls and my desire to give back to the community that has blessed me for the past 31 years is reflected in the many committees, associations, and community organizations I have served with. Through these roles, I have worked to build connections among diverse groups and foster understanding across cultures. I consider myself a bridge between communities, helping bring people together around a shared purpose of strengthening and enriching our community. My involvement has always been driven by a belief that meaningful relationships and collaboration across cultures create a stronger, more inclusive Twin Falls for everyone.

What do you believe are the three most significant issues facing the City of Twin Falls over the next three to five years, and what role should the City Council play in addressing them? *

1. Housing: Twin Falls continues to grow and housing pricing is rising faster than most working families incomes. City council could assist by streamlining some of the permitting and development approvals, encouraging the mix housing types included in the comprehensive plan and working with private organizations to increase housing supply.

2. Managing growth: As a hub, the city has a huge influx of population for work, shopping and services. This influx puts a great pressure on our infrastructure. City council could help by the continued prioritization of Infrastructure planning, pursuing federal funding opportunities and the continued cooperation with sorrounding communities that rely on our services.

3. Workforce retention: our strong economic growth has been a plus for our community but the retention of a skilled workforce is a continues challenge. City council could assist while continuing the encouragement of business growth while maintaining our great community character, the continued development of parks and our great downtown and ultimately promote opportunities that assist your familes to grow within city.

Council members will sometimes vote on an issue where their personal preference differs from what they believe is in the best interest of the community as a whole. Share the approach that you would take with a difficult or controversial decision when residents are sharply divided. *

During my 13 years serving on the Planning and Zoning Commission, I encountered many situations similar to those described above. These experiences reinforced my belief that elected officials must prioritize the long-term well-being of our city above personal agendas or individual beliefs.

I believe communication and education are the most effective tools for bringing people together and finding solutions that best serve the community. Equally important is the willingness to listen, because meaningful dialogue begins with understanding different perspectives.

Educating our community about city regulations and ordinances also helps us better understand what works, what does not, and where improvements may be needed. Regulations and ordinances exist to provide consistency, fairness, and predictability. When we disagree with them, our responsibility is to work through the proper process to change them, rather than creating exceptions that weaken their purpose and effectiveness.

Effective councils require members who can disagree with one another while maintaining productive working relationships. Tell us about a time you strongly disagreed with colleagues or other leaders. How did you handle it, and what did you learn from the experience? *

As I mentioned in my previous answer, communication is the most valuable tool available to any council member. Throughout my professional career and civic involvement, I have encountered many situations where I strongly disagreed with the opinions of others. In every case, however, I have made a conscious effort to remember that disagreement with an idea is not disagreement with the person expressing it.

Our life experiences shape our beliefs, behaviors, and ultimately our decisions. Because of this, every individual brings a unique and valuable perspective to the conversation. If we are willing to listen with an open mind, there is always something we can learn from one another.

Recognizing the value of every person makes it easier to understand that most disagreements are not personal. They are simply differences in perspective. In many cases, thoughtful listening not only helps us better understand others, but also challenges us to reconsider and strengthen our own viewpoints. Effective leadership requires respect, humility, and a genuine willingness to learn from those we serve.

Why do you want to serve on the Twin Falls City Council, and what experiences or perspectives would you bring to the Council that would help you represent the entire community? *

Please include past public service experiences that you have (City commissions and committees, elected positions, etc.

I want to serve on the Twin Falls City Council because Twin Falls is not simply where I live, it is the community I have spent decades serving. Through my work as a school counselor and my involvement with local boards, civic organizations, businesses, families, and community initiatives, I have had the privilege of seeing Twin Falls from many perspectives.

As an immigrant who has built a life here, I understand both the opportunities our community provides and the importance of ensuring every resident feels heard and represented. I bring experience in education, human resources, criminal justice, and community service, along with a willingness to listen, ask difficult questions, and work collaboratively.

I would approach Council decisions with independence, common sense, compassion, and respect. I would not represent one group, neighborhood, or political viewpoint. I would work to represent all of Twin Falls.

What do you believe are the three most significant issues facing the City of Twin Falls over the next three to five years, and what role should the City Council play in addressing them? *

Over the next three to five years, I believe Twin Falls must focus on managing growth responsibly, maintaining affordability and economic vitality, and protecting public safety and quality of life.

Growth brings opportunity, but our infrastructure such as our roads, water, sewer, public facilities, and essential services must keep pace. The Council must plan ahead rather than simply react to growth.

We must also remain a community where families, seniors, young people, and businesses can afford to live, work, and thrive. The City cannot solve every economic challenge, but it can encourage responsible development, support local businesses, and make sound fiscal decisions.

Finally, public safety must remain a priority. Our police, fire, streets, parks, and other essential services directly affect residents' daily lives.

The Council's role is to listen, plan responsibly, set priorities, and ensure taxpayer dollars are used wisely while preserving the character that makes Twin Falls home.

Council members will sometimes vote on an issue where their personal preference differs from what they believe is in the best interest of the community as a whole. Share the approach that you would take with a difficult or controversial decision when residents are sharply divided. *

When residents are sharply divided, my responsibility would be to listen carefully to all sides, ask difficult questions, gather the facts, and consider both the immediate and long-term consequences of the decision.

I have strong personal beliefs, but serving on the City Council would not be about advancing my personal preferences. It would be about serving the entire community, including people who disagree with me. I would consider public input, professional recommendations, legal and financial implications, and what best serves Twin Falls as a whole.

I also believe leadership requires the courage to make difficult decisions. Consensus will not always be possible, and not every decision will be popular. When that happens, I would make the decision I believe is responsible, explain my reasoning openly, and remain respectful of those who disagree.

My goal would always be thoughtful, transparent decision-making based on service rather than politics.

Effective councils require members who can disagree with one another while maintaining productive working relationships. Tell us about a time you strongly disagreed with colleagues or other leaders. How did you handle it, and what did you learn from the experience? *

Throughout my career in education and community service, I have had occasions when I strongly disagreed with colleagues or leadership about decisions affecting the people we served. I learned early that disagreement does not have to become personal.

My approach has been to express my concerns honestly, explain the reasons behind my position, and then listen carefully to the perspectives of others. I ask questions, look for areas of common ground, and remain open to information that may cause me to reconsider my position.

There have been times when the final decision was not the one I supported. Once a decision was made, however, I continued working respectfully and productively with those involved.

Those experiences taught me that strong relationships are not built on always agreeing. They are built on trust, professionalism, respect, and the understanding that reasonable people can view the same issue differently and still work together effectively.

Why do you want to serve on the Twin Falls City Council, and what experiences or perspectives would you bring to the Council that would help you represent the entire community? *

Please include past public service experiences that you have (City commissions and committees, elected positions, etc.

I have a strong interest in the future of Twin Falls andwould welcome the opportunity to continue serving our community in a greatercapacity. My current service on the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commissionfor the last five years, has given me valuable experience reviewing developmentproposals, listening to residents and businesses, considering the long-termeffects of city decisions, and working within the public process.

As a local business owner and longtime member of thecommunity, some 50 years, I understand many of the opportunities and challengesfacing Twin Falls. I believe responsible growth, public safety, infrastructure,support for local businesses, fiscal responsibility, and maintaining thequality of life that makes Twin Falls a great place to live should remainimportant considerations as our community continues to grow.

I also believe a City Council member should be willingto listen. Residents may not always agree on an issue, but they deserve to havetheir concerns heard and thoughtfully considered. I would approach the positionwith an open mind, common sense, and a willingness to work with fellow Councilmembers, city staff, businesses, and residents.

What do you believe are the three most significant issues facing the City of Twin Falls over the next three to five years, and what role should the City Council play in addressing them? *

I believe the three most significant issues facing Twin Falls over the next three to five years are managing growth and infrastructure, maintaining housing opportunities and quality of life, and ensuring that public safety and essential city services keep pace with our growing community.

1. Managing Growth and Infrastructure

Twin Falls continues to grow, and with that growth comes increased pressure on our roads, traffic systems, water and wastewater infrastructure, and other public facilities. Growth is a positive sign for our community, but it needs to be managed responsibly.

The City Council's role should be to plan ahead rather than continually react to problems after they occur. That means prioritizing infrastructure projects, maintaining our existing streets and utilities, coordinating development with available infrastructure, and making sure new development contributes appropriately to the demands it creates. I also believe we need to protect the character of existing neighborhoods while allowing reasonable and responsible growth.

2. Housing and Maintaining Our Quality of Life

As Twin Falls grows, we need a variety of housing options for working families, young people starting out, seniors, and the people we rely on every day to work in our hospitals, schools, businesses, and public services.

At the same time, increasing housing supply should not mean approving every development or simply increasing density everywhere. Good planning matters. Development should fit the surrounding area, have adequate roads and infrastructure, and contribute positively to the community.

The Council should establish clear, predictable land-use policies and work with developers, employers, and community organizations to encourage responsible housing development while protecting the qualities that make Twin Falls a desirable place to live.

3. Public Safety and Maintaining Essential City Services

As our population increases, demands on police, fire, streets, parks, utilities, and other city services will increase as well. Residents expect Twin Falls to remain a clean, safe, well-maintained community.

The Council has a responsibility to establish priorities and make disciplined decisions about how taxpayer dollars are spent. Public safety and core infrastructure should remain among our highest priorities. At the same time, the Council should continually look for efficiencies, measure results, and make sure residents are receiving good value for their tax dollars.

Ultimately, I believe the City Council's job is to look beyond the next budget year and make decisions based on where Twin Falls will be five, ten, and even twenty years from now. We should welcome responsible growth while protecting taxpayers, existing neighborhoods, local businesses, and the quality of life that makes Twin Falls a great place to call home.

Council members will sometimes vote on an issue where their personal preference differs from what they believe is in the best interest of the community as a whole. Share the approach that you would take with a difficult or controversial decision when residents are sharply divided. *

When residents are sharply divided on an issue, I believe a City Council member's first responsibility is to listen. I would make an effort to understand all sides of the issue, review the facts, seek input from residents, City staff, and other affected parties, and carefully consider both the immediate and long-term consequences of the decision.

Public input is extremely important, but I also recognize that the loudest voices in the room do not necessarily represent the entire community. I would consider the interests of residents who attend meetings and speak publicly, as well as those who may never come before the Council but will still be affected by its decisions.

There will also be times when my personal preference is different from what I believe is best for Twin Falls as a whole. In those situations, I believe my responsibility as a Council member would be to put the community first. I would base my vote on the facts, the law, fiscal responsibility, long-term impacts, and what I believe best serves the residents of Twin Falls.

I would also be transparent about my decision. Even when people disagree with a vote, they deserve to understand why it was made. I would explain my reasoning respectfully and be willing to listen to criticism afterward.

Not every difficult decision will make everyone happy. My goal would not be to make the most popular decision, but to make a thoughtful, informed, and responsible decision that I can clearly explain and stand behind.

Effective councils require members who can disagree with one another while maintaining productive working relationships. Tell us about a time you strongly disagreed with colleagues or other leaders. How did you handle it, and what did you learn from the experience? *

During my time serving on the Twin Falls Planning & Zoning Commission, there were issues where I strongly disagreed with other commissioners, City staff, or individuals appearing before the Commission. Land-use decisions can be particularly difficult because they can affect neighborhoods, property owners, businesses, and the future growth of the community.

My approach was to listen carefully to the other viewpoints, ask questions, review the facts, and then clearly explain the reasons for my position. I learned that you can strongly disagree with someone without making the disagreement personal. Once a decision was made, I respected the outcome and continued working professionally with the same people on the next issue.

One of the most important things I learned from serving on Planning & Zoning is that disagreement can actually improve the decision-making process when it is handled respectfully. Different perspectives can bring attention to issues or consequences that others may not have considered.

I also learned that you should never be afraid to ask difficult questions or respectfully stand alone on an issue when you believe it is necessary. At the same time, you have to remain open to new information and be willing to change your position when the facts support doing so.

If appointed to the City Council, I would bring that same approach. I would expect that there will be times when I disagree with other Council members, but I would treat them with respect, explain my position, listen to theirs, cast my vote, and then continue working with them toward the next decision. We do not have to agree on every issue to work together effectively for Twin Falls.
